

ANALYZING

PUBLIC LIFE DATA

activity INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP

The choreography of public life can serve as a entry point for urban analysis. This workshop will provide participants with the opportunity to use, assess and evaluate various observational methods in the public realm. Together we will synthesize, analyze and interpret observational data on public life and propose planning interventions based on our original field research. We will focus on four sites in Poblenou: Superilla, Rambla Poblenou, Marbella and Pere IV-Trullàs. Barcelona is under global pressures that are typical of highly attractive global cities, including gentrification, tourism and the contestation of public space. Our work will aim to address the underlying policy issues that are transforming the public realm.
