activitat INTERNACIONAL WORKSHOP
The heart of Barcelona has been transformed through “small scale masterplans” ever since the seventies. This urban microacupuncture has been mainly focused on the gaps. The goal of these empty spaces, whether if they were existing or new, was to renew the old city providing cultural services, new pedestrian axes and overall a new structure of empty spaces with meeting places for the neighbourhood and oxygen for the old town.
The current international workshop’s aim is to focus on the empty spaces in order to reinforce the synergies of the district whilst giving answer to its physical, social and cultural needs. The workshop’s result should enhance the old town through its urban voids, kicking off by the existing gap’s analyse and ending up with a new strategy of its reconsideration as system: in networks, clusters or intangible connections. Thus, mind the gaps!
